Norwich and Cambridge
Early Dance Weekend

A residential course at the University of East Anglia, Norwich

Friday 19th – Sunday 21st March 2027

Italian dances from the 15th century

Tutor: Anne Deller

Outward Act Which Accords with the Measured Melody

This course explores some of the 15th century Italian repertoire looking at the 6 elements of dance identified by Guglielmo Ebreo of Pesaro.

A practical course working particularly on musicality and performance. Our tutor Anne Deller will go over the steps and look at the various ways they may be danced to different effect. We will take dances 'off the page' and make them our own in all their infinite variety - and have lots of fun along the way.
Anne has worked in the field of historical dance since the mid 1990s when she was introduced to 16th century dance as a re-enactor. Since then she has regularly performed historical dance including professionally at Hampton Court and other historical venues. Among others, she has studied the 15th century repertoire with Diana Cruickshank, Hazel Dennison and Veronique Daniels. For the last 5 years she has led Renaissance Footnotes and been an occasional teacher for other groups.

Our venue: the University of East Anglia

The university is known for its bold architecture, set in a green and rural landscape, although the city centre is easily and quickly accessible. We will be using a dance studio in the well equipped Sportspark where we will also have some meals, and it is only a very short walk from Broadview Hotel where we are staying.

Broadview Hotel

There should be time to explore the Broad, bluebell woods, river, parkland, or if the weather is inclement the unique Sainsbury Centre art museum has permanent and temporary exhibitions.

You may also see the famous 'ziggurats', some of the original student accommodation designed by Denys Lasdun in the 1960s

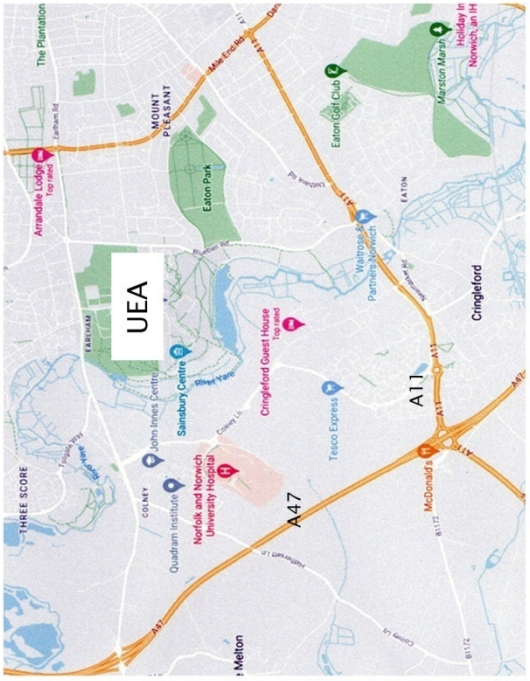

The Broad and Bridge

Participants may wish to pop into Norwich city centre with its two cathedrals, excellent shops and market, castle, museums and a multitude of medieval churches.
